
THE FINAL CALM BEFORE THE ECLIPSE
2 DAYS TO GO | EVERYONE PROTECTED. ONE LEFT BEHIND.
VOID WALKER
SEASON 3
THE FINAL HALF YEAR
EVACUATION OF INNOCENTS
FINAL GOODBYES
ONE WILL STAY BEHIND
THE BARRIER OF HOPE
THE CRIMSON ECLIPSE
HE PROTECTS. HE SACRIFICES. HE FIGHTS ALONE
BY HARRIS RAVI

VOID WALKER — SEASON 3

Chapter 1: The Silent Attack

2.5 Years Before The Crimson Eclipse

Moonlight covered Harlina's terrace silently while Harris watched the crimson sky, sensing terrifying pressure surrounding existence tonight completely.

Cold winds crossed Ravaryn City slowly while distant thunder echoed across mountains hidden beyond the kingdom borders during midnight.

Harris remained motionless beside the terrace railing while staring directly toward the moon glowing unnaturally brighter than yesterday's night.

The Eternal Symbol inside Harris reacted violently tonight, warning him silently about danger approaching somewhere beyond ordinary human understanding completely.

Every instinct inside Harris screamed carefully tonight while invisible pressure slowly tightened around the entire atmosphere surrounding Harlina's peaceful home silently.

Harris narrowed his eyes immediately after sensing another presence stronger than his Infinite Destruction energy hidden somewhere nearby within darkness tonight.

That feeling terrified Harris deeply because nobody previously carried pressure overwhelming enough to suppress his awakened Void Walker powers completely.

Harris immediately activated Void energy silently while black aura surrounded his body carefully without alarming anybody sleeping peacefully downstairs tonight.

Purple lightning crackled around Harris slowly while his eyes transformed completely into glowing Void Walker eyes filled with dangerous determination tonight.

Still, the mysterious presence never disappeared completely, continuing silently while observing Harris patiently from somewhere beyond normal dimensional perception tonight.

Harris clenched his fists harder slowly while carefully scanning every rooftop, shadow, nearby forest, and distant mountain surrounding Ravaryn tonight.

Despite intense concentration, Harris still failed discovering the exact location hiding that terrifying presence silently beyond normal human detection completely tonight.

Suddenly, Harlina opened the terrace door carefully while holding warm dinner prepared personally for Harris after tonight's exhausting academy training sessions.

Harlina smiled softly toward Harris lovingly while moonlight reflected beautifully across her silver eyes glowing warmly underneath the crimson night sky tonight.

She placed the dinner gently nearby before speaking happily, hoping Harris finally relaxed slightly after carrying endless pressure throughout previous difficult months recently.

"Harris, dinner became cold already tonight. Please eat something before continuing your endless thinking beneath this freezing moon tonight," Harlina said softly.

Harris remained completely focused toward the mysterious pressure silently without turning around once toward Harlina standing carefully behind him nearby tonight.

The invisible presence suddenly intensified dangerously again, causing Harris instinctively preparing another defensive Void barrier around the terrace immediately tonight silently.

Harlina noticed Harris trembling slightly tonight while dark energy slowly leaked uncontrollably from his arms because overwhelming pressure affected him deeply already.

She stepped closer carefully toward Harris before touching his shoulder gently, hoping comforting words could calm his frightened emotions tonight slightly somehow.

"Please stop worrying alone tonight, Harris. Everybody supports you always. You don't need carrying everything without rest anymore," Harlina whispered gently.

Harris suddenly pushed Harlina's hand away harshly while keeping complete focus toward detecting the dangerous presence hiding outside nearby tonight silently.

"Leave me alone tonight, Harlina. Can't you understand something dangerous surrounds us already? Stop distracting me right now," Harris answered harshly.

Those painful words shattered Harlina instantly while sadness filled her eyes slowly underneath the cold moonlight surrounding the silent terrace tonight completely.

Harlina stepped backward silently while holding tears carefully, refusing letting Harris notice how deeply those harsh words wounded her heart tonight.

She forced another weak smile painfully before quietly taking the untouched dinner plate away from the freezing terrace beneath crimson moonlight tonight silently.

"Okay, Harris. Sorry for disturbing your important thoughts tonight," Harlina answered softly while trying desperately controlling her breaking emotions carefully tonight.

Harris never noticed Harlina's trembling voice because his entire attention remained locked toward the terrifying presence hiding somewhere nearby silently tonight.

The terrace door closed slowly afterward while Harlina immediately covered her mouth, preventing loud sobbing from reaching Harris upstairs tonight silently.

Tears rolled endlessly across Harlina's cheeks while she ran directly toward her room downstairs feeling abandoned completely by Harris tonight emotionally.

Inside her room, Harlina buried herself beneath blankets silently while remembering Harris' painful words repeatedly tonight without stopping emotionally completely.

Meanwhile, Harris intensified Void energy further tonight while carefully expanding sensory perception across every surrounding street nearby silently searching desperately everywhere.

The mysterious presence suddenly vanished completely again, causing Harris becoming even more cautious because experienced assassins often disguised movements carefully tonight.

Harris slowly walked toward the terrace edge carefully while black Void flames surrounded his body silently underneath the crimson moonlight tonight continuously.

Suddenly, something pierced directly toward Harris' heart faster than lightning striking violently from complete darkness surrounding the terrace unexpectedly tonight suddenly.

Harris barely escaped death instantly after twisting sideways rapidly while razor-thin threads sliced the air beside his chest violently tonight dangerously.

The attack continued immediately afterward while dozens of invisible threads rushed directly toward Harris simultaneously from multiple impossible directions nearby tonight.

Each thread curved unnaturally through the air while chasing Harris continuously like intelligent hunting drones programmed exclusively for assassination tonight silently.

Harris jumped backward rapidly while activating Infinite Destruction barriers defensively, attempting blocking the incoming attacks surrounding him completely tonight dangerously.

Shockingly, the threads ignored nearby walls entirely while curving around obstacles perfectly before targeting Harris' vital organs repeatedly tonight without hesitation.

Harris realized immediately this enemy possessed terrifying precision surpassing ordinary assassins previously encountered during earlier missions throughout Ravaryn completely already.

One thread sliced Harris' shoulder deeply while another pierced his side violently despite maximum Void defenses protecting his weakened exhausted body tonight.

Blood scattered across the terrace floor silently while Harris struggled desperately against attacks moving faster than his enhanced perception tonight continuously already.

Purple Void energy exploded violently across the rooftop while Harris attempted destroying the invisible threads surrounding him from every possible direction tonight.

However, the mysterious attacker always remained hidden completely beyond visibility while continuing relentless attacks against Harris silently tonight without revealing identity ever.

Another thread pierced Harris' leg violently while several others wrapped around his arms tightly, restricting movement dangerously underneath moonlight tonight completely.

Pain spread across Harris' body immediately while Infinite Destruction energy started destabilizing uncontrollably because injuries weakened concentration significantly tonight already.

Harris roared loudly while releasing massive Void energy outward violently, finally severing several deadly threads surrounding his wounded body tonight desperately.

Despite escaping temporary restraint, Harris still sensed overwhelming danger nearby because the mysterious enemy never stopped attacking continuously tonight mercilessly afterward.

Every thread targeted Harris' heart specifically tonight, proving clearly that this assassin understood Void Walker regeneration abilities extremely well already beforehand.

Harris attempted locating the attacker through energy signatures carefully but discovered absolutely nothing except terrifying silence surrounding the dark neighborhood tonight completely.

Suddenly, countless additional threads descended from above simultaneously while spinning rapidly toward Harris like unstoppable blades tonight violently without warning suddenly.

Harris activated full Void Walker power immediately while black lightning consumed the terrace violently underneath the crimson moon illuminating Ravaryn tonight completely.

Even with maximum power activated completely tonight, Harris still failed blocking every incoming attack surrounding his exhausted body continuously during battle desperately.

Several threads pierced Harris' chest violently while another sliced dangerously across his neck, causing massive blood loss immediately tonight during combat already.

Harris staggered backward painfully while vision blurred slowly because severe injuries overwhelmed even his enhanced Void Walker body regeneration tonight continuously already.

The assassin finally whispered coldly from somewhere invisible nearby, terrifying Harris instantly after hearing unnatural emotionless voice echoing silently tonight completely.

"Void Walker, your death begins tonight. Crimson Eclipse demands your destruction before destiny fully awakens someday soon," the mysterious voice declared coldly.

Harris attempted counterattacking blindly afterward while unleashing devastating Void blasts across surrounding rooftops violently tonight searching desperately everywhere nearby continuously.

Still, every attack missed completely because the assassin moved impossibly fast beyond ordinary dimensional movement limitations tonight silently without revealing location ever.

Another devastating thread pierced directly toward Harris' heart again while his exhausted body reacted slower than previous attacks tonight dangerously already.

Harris barely avoided immediate death again afterward, but the thread still tore deeply through his ribs painfully tonight during relentless combat continuously.

Blood poured endlessly from Harris' wounds while his strength gradually disappeared beneath the overwhelming speed surpassing his strongest defensive reactions tonight completely.

Finally, Harris collapsed from exhaustion near the terrace edge while Void energy flickered weakly around his heavily damaged body tonight dangerously already.

Before losing consciousness completely tonight, Harris suddenly remembered Harlina crying silently downstairs because of his cruel words earlier painfully tonight emotionally.

Guilt struck Harris harder than every physical wound combined while regret filled his breaking heart completely underneath the crimson moon tonight silently.

"After receiving this cursed power, maybe I destroyed my original self completely already," Harris thought painfully before collapsing unconscious afterward silently tonight.

The assassin launched one final attack afterward while another deadly thread rushed directly toward Harris' unconscious body violently tonight from darkness suddenly.

However, Harris' collapsing body accidentally rolled sideways down nearby bushes beneath the terrace moments before the fatal attack landed tonight silently instead.

The invisible threads immediately disappeared afterward while the mysterious assassin vanished completely without leaving traces anywhere surrounding Harlina's home tonight afterward.

Nobody noticed the entire battle occurring outside because every attack moved unbelievably fast beyond ordinary human perception tonight completely during midnight silently.

Moonlight illuminated the nearby bushes quietly while unconscious Harris remained hidden underneath broken branches covered completely with blood tonight silently afterward.

Rain slowly started falling afterward while thunder echoed across distant mountains surrounding Ravaryn City during the terrifying silent midnight tonight completely afterward.

Inside her room downstairs, Harlina continued crying silently tonight without realizing Harris currently fought desperately outside against terrifying assassins nearby already.

The following morning arrived quietly while gray clouds covered Ravaryn City completely after last night's mysterious storm passed silently afterward nearby eventually.

Koji entered Harlina's house calmly afterward while carrying academy investigation documents regarding increasing criminal movements surrounding Ravaryn recently during morning hours today.

He immediately noticed unusual silence inside the house because Harris normally trained outside before sunrise every single morning previously without exception ever.

Koji looked toward Harlina curiously afterward before asking casually where Harris disappeared since nobody spotted him anywhere throughout morning training today.

Harlina froze momentarily after hearing Harris' name because painful memories from last night's harsh rejection returned immediately today emotionally once again.

She turned away quickly afterward while forcing herself suppressing remaining sadness hidden carefully inside her wounded heart completely during conversation today silently.

"I don't know where Harris disappeared today. Why are you asking me about him suddenly now?" Harlina answered loudly afterward emotionally.

Koji immediately realized something terrible happened last night because Harlina never previously responded aggressively whenever somebody mentioned Harris before today.

He carefully observed Harlina silently afterward while noticing swollen eyes proving she cried heavily throughout the previous painful night completely already recently.

Meanwhile, Jekuna arrived outside afterward alongside Lunar because academy authorities requested immediate investigation regarding strange energy disturbances detected nearby recently tonight.

Koji walked outside immediately afterward before explaining Harris disappeared mysteriously while Harlina behaved emotionally unstable since last night's unknown events occurred recently.

Jekuna narrowed his eyes seriously afterward because disappearing suddenly without warning never matched Harris' usual responsible personality completely during dangerous circumstances recently.

Lunar immediately sensed remaining traces of unstable Void energy nearby afterward while carefully examining the damaged terrace surroundings silently during investigation today.

"Something dangerous definitely happened here last night. Harris would never abandon responsibilities without explanation during crisis situations," Lunar stated seriously afterward.

Koji, Jekuna, and Lunar immediately began searching surrounding streets carefully afterward while following faint energy traces leading away from Harlina's house today.

The investigation continued intensely afterward while academy guards assisted silently throughout nearby neighborhoods searching desperately for missing Void Walker today continuously everywhere.

Finally, Lunar discovered bloodstains hidden carefully beneath broken bushes near Harlina's terrace afterward during the dangerous investigation this morning silently nearby.

Jekuna rushed forward instantly afterward before uncovering unconscious Harris lying motionless underneath damaged branches covered heavily with dried blood completely nearby today.

Shock immediately spread across everybody afterward because Harris' injuries appeared unbelievably severe despite possessing extraordinary Void Walker regeneration abilities completely already.

Deep wounds covered Harris' body entirely afterward while strange thread-like cuts surrounded nearly every critical area dangerously today silently nearby within bushes.

Koji immediately called emergency medical teams afterward while Jekuna carefully lifted Harris from the blood-covered ground nearby during the terrifying discovery today silently.

Harlina witnessed everything afterward from nearby distance while horror consumed her completely after seeing Harris unconscious and heavily injured today emotionally already.

Guilt immediately overwhelmed Harlina afterward because she spent the entire night believing Harris intentionally rejected her feelings coldly yesterday emotionally completely.

Medical teams transported Harris toward Ravaryn Central Hospital immediately afterward while emergency sirens echoed loudly across surrounding streets nearby today continuously afterward.

Doctors throughout the hospital became shocked afterward because Harris survived injuries that should instantly kill ordinary enhanced warriors completely during examination today already.

Despite advanced treatment efforts afterward, Harris remained unconscious continuously for one entire week without showing significant recovery signs today silently afterward.

During that painful week afterward, Harlina visited the hospital secretly every single day while blaming herself endlessly for misunderstanding Harris emotionally completely.

Koji investigated tirelessly afterward while tracing possible assassin connections linked toward underground Crimson Eclipse organizations operating secretly throughout Ravaryn recently nearby.

Jekuna trained relentlessly afterward because Harris' condition proved stronger enemies already entered their world before the Crimson Eclipse officially arrived someday soon.

Lunar analyzed remaining energy traces continuously afterward while discovering disturbing evidence suggesting dimensional assassination techniques beyond ordinary combat systems completely already.

Exactly one week later afterward, Harris finally regained consciousness slowly underneath bright hospital lights surrounding the silent medical recovery room today quietly.

Pain exploded across Harris' body instantly afterward while he attempted moving slightly upon awakening inside the heavily protected hospital room today painfully completely.

Shock immediately filled Harris afterward because his entire body completely refused movement despite intense effort controlling muscles normally today silently already.

Even lifting one finger became impossible afterward while unbearable pain spread violently through every damaged nerve across Harris' weakened body completely today.

Jekuna noticed Harris awakening immediately afterward before walking toward the hospital bed silently carrying visible concern across his normally cold expression today.

"Don't move recklessly, idiot. Your body barely survived those attacks during last week's assassination attempt," Jekuna warned seriously afterward today.

Harris ignored his own pain instantly afterward while desperately searching surrounding hospital room carefully for Harlina nearby today emotionally already silently.

"Where's Harlina right now? Did somebody tell her what happened during that terrifying night already?" Harris asked weakly afterward immediately today.

Jekuna remained silent briefly afterward before answering honestly that Harlina supposedly knew absolutely nothing regarding last week's attack incident today emotionally completely.

Hearing those words shattered Harris emotionally afterward because guilt regarding his cruel behavior toward Harlina intensified painfully inside his heart today continuously already.

Harris remembered Harlina crying silently afterward while his final conscious thoughts during battle repeated endlessly throughout his broken exhausted mind today emotionally completely.

"I hurt her terribly that night. I must apologize immediately, even if she never forgives my horrible behavior," Harris whispered painfully afterward.

Despite unbearable injuries afterward, Harris forced himself attempting movement desperately while removing medical wires attached throughout his damaged body today recklessly completely.

Pain immediately overwhelmed Harris afterward while blood reopened from several wounds because his body still required significant recovery time today dangerously already.

Still, Harris continued struggling forward afterward because apologizing toward Harlina mattered more than his physical suffering currently today emotionally completely already.

He finally managed standing weakly afterward before collapsing instantly onto the hospital floor moments later because his legs completely failed today painfully afterward.

Jekuna sighed heavily afterward before lifting Harris carefully back toward the hospital bed nearby during the reckless emotional breakdown today silently completely.

"You're punishing yourself unnecessarily again, Harris. Recovery comes first before emotional drama with Harlina currently," Jekuna stated seriously afterward today.

Harris shook his head weakly afterward while tears formed slowly because guilt consumed him far stronger than physical pain currently today emotionally already.

"No, Jekuna. I deserve punishment after hurting her feelings terribly that night before disappearing completely afterward," Harris answered painfully today.

Meanwhile, Koji finally decided informing Harlina honestly afterward because hiding Harris' condition only increased emotional misunderstandings between both friends today continuously already.

Koji visited Harlina quietly afterward before explaining Harris regained consciousness recently despite remaining severely injured inside Ravaryn Central Hospital today silently.

The moment Harlina heard Harris awakened afterward, overwhelming relief instantly replaced the sadness crushing her heart throughout the painful previous week completely today.

Without hesitation afterward, Harlina immediately ran toward the hospital desperately while tears streamed endlessly across her face during emotional realization today silently.

Rain started falling again afterward while Harlina sprinted desperately through crowded streets toward the hospital carrying endless fear inside her heart today emotionally.

She feared arriving too late afterward because countless terrible possibilities haunted her mind continuously throughout the exhausting journey toward Harris today silently completely.

Finally, Harlina reached the hospital afterward before rushing directly toward Harris' recovery room upstairs without stopping once during emotional panic today completely.

The hospital hallway became completely silent afterward while Harlina slowly opened the recovery room door nervously with trembling hands today emotionally completely.

Inside the room afterward, Harris remained unconscious again temporarily while medical machines monitored his unstable condition continuously nearby today silently completely.

Bandages covered nearly his entire body afterward while bruises and deep injuries revealed how violently the assassin attacked him recently today terrifyingly completely.

Harlina's heart shattered instantly afterward because she finally understood Harris ignored dinner because dangerous enemies threatened everybody surrounding them already tonight previously.

Tears immediately returned afterward while Harlina walked slowly beside Harris' hospital bed carefully during the painful emotional moment today silently completely.

She gently held Harris' weakened hand afterward while apologizing softly for misunderstanding his fear and emotional pressure recently tonight previously emotionally completely.

At that exact moment afterward, Harris slowly regained consciousness again while sensing familiar warmth surrounding his injured body peacefully today silently nearby.

Harris opened his eyes weakly afterward before immediately noticing Harlina sitting beside him carefully inside the quiet hospital room today emotionally completely.

The instant Harris saw Harlina afterward, overwhelming guilt exploded uncontrollably while tears streamed endlessly down his face immediately today emotionally completely.

"Harlina, I'm sorry. I'm truly sorry for hurting you that horrible night before everything happened," Harris cried loudly afterward today emotionally.

Harris suddenly slammed his forehead violently against the nearby hospital wall afterward because self-hatred completely overwhelmed his broken emotional state today dangerously already.

Harlina immediately stopped Harris afterward before carefully holding him tightly, preventing additional injuries during the emotional breakdown today silently completely nearby.

"Please stop hurting yourself, Harris. Don't apologize anymore. I misunderstood your emotions that terrifying night completely," Harlina whispered gently afterward today.

She carefully wiped Harris' tears afterward while smiling softly despite crying herself during the emotional reconciliation inside the quiet hospital room today completely.

"I was selfish that night too, Harris. I never understood how much pressure crushed your heart constantly recently," Harlina admitted sadly afterward.

Harris continued apologizing repeatedly afterward because guilt still consumed him endlessly despite Harlina forgiving everything already emotionally today completely silently nearby.

Emotional pain overwhelmed Harris completely afterward while unstable Void energy suddenly reacted dangerously throughout the hospital room today continuously already nearby.

Medical monitors started malfunctioning afterward while black lightning flickered weakly around Harris because intense emotions destabilized his weakened powers today dangerously completely.

Koji entered the room quickly afterward before calming everybody carefully while asking Harris important questions regarding the mysterious assassin today seriously completely nearby.

"Did you recognize whoever attacked you last week, Harris? Any details might help our investigation immediately," Koji asked seriously afterward today.

Harris closed his eyes painfully afterward while remembering the terrifying battle occurring beneath the crimson moon last week today emotionally completely silently nearby.

"I never saw the attacker's face clearly. Everything happened unbelievably fast before invisible threads pierced my body repeatedly," Harris explained weakly afterward.

Harris described the terrifying presence carefully afterward while explaining the enemy possessed pressure stronger than his awakened Void Walker powers today seriously completely.

"I think the attacker intended killing me specifically. Every attack targeted my heart repeatedly without hesitation," Harris continued weakly afterward today silently.

Koji listened carefully afterward while recording every detail regarding thread-like weapons, impossible speed, and dimensional movement techniques today seriously completely nearby.

Harris suddenly remembered another disturbing detail afterward before gripping the hospital blanket tightly underneath trembling fingers today emotionally completely already nearby.

"Before losing consciousness completely, I heard the attacker mention Crimson Eclipse directly during the battle outside Harlina's house," Harris revealed seriously afterward.

Silence immediately filled the hospital room afterward because everybody understood Crimson Eclipse organizations already began hunting Void Walker aggressively today completely nearby.

Koji immediately contacted Izuku afterward because underground intelligence networks frequently monitored secret assassin movements connected toward forbidden Eclipse cults today continuously already.

Several hours later afterward, Izuku arrived secretly at the hospital carrying classified documents regarding increasing assassination contracts surrounding Harris recently nearby today.

Izuku placed multiple investigation files carefully afterward before explaining dangerous information discovered through hidden criminal connections recently throughout underground networks today silently completely.

"More killers already received assignments targeting Void Walker directly before Crimson Eclipse finally begins someday soon," Izuku explained seriously afterward today.

Harlina's expression immediately darkened afterward because hearing additional assassins existed meant Harris remained constantly endangered despite surviving recent attacks today emotionally completely.

Izuku continued speaking calmly afterward while revealing terrifying organizational structures operating secretly behind Crimson Eclipse supporters throughout neighboring kingdoms recently today.

"If one assassin fails killing Void Walker, another immediately continues the mission afterward without hesitation or mercy," Izuku revealed coldly today seriously.

Those chilling words transformed the hospital atmosphere completely afterward while everybody realized Harris' battle only recently truly began today emotionally completely nearby.

Outside the hospital afterward, the crimson moon slowly appeared again beyond dark clouds covering Ravaryn City silently tonight ominously completely nearby.

Far away within endless darkness afterward, another mysterious figure observed Harris silently while countless razor-thin threads moved around surrounding shadows tonight dangerously completely.

The unknown assassin smiled coldly afterward before whispering silently underneath the crimson moon illuminating distant mountains nearby tonight ominously completely.

"Void Walker survived this encounter unfortunately. Next time, destiny itself will cut apart his remaining hope completely forever," the assassin whispered coldly.

TO BE CONTINUED.

By Harris Ravi

VOID WALKER S3 — CHAPTER 2: “ECHOES OF THE ASSASSIN”

Harris was in hospital, injuries temporarily stabilized, but emotional pain lingered deeper than physical wounds affecting his mind continuously.

Even while doctors monitored him, he felt unnatural pressure building again, like danger refusing to leave his existence completely.

He left hospital early despite warnings, because staying felt more dangerous than facing enemies outside in unstable unknown battlefield conditions.

He trained through intense pain, pushing body beyond limits, trying to understand divine secrets of Void and ancient weapon systems.

Every movement felt heavier than before, not just physically but emotionally, because he feared losing people connected to him.

Harlina’s memory stayed in his mind constantly, creating silent emotional weight he never admitted but carried deeply inside consciousness always.

During training, the air suddenly changed, becoming heavier, colder, as if reality itself stopped acknowledging normal flow of existence.

Harris immediately sensed it, another assassin presence, stronger than previous one, spreading across space like invisible death surrounding everything.

He did not activate Void immediately, forcing himself to stay calm, trying to confirm intent instead of reacting blindly.

He spoke into silence, asking identity and purpose, hoping communication was possible even in enemy classified assassination encounter situation.

No response came, only tightening silence, compressing space like reality itself preparing execution without permission or delay sequence activation.

Then suddenly, assassin attacked instantly, without sound, without movement buildup, executing spatial rupture aimed directly at Harris heart immediately.

Harris did not dodge, choosing to accept impact, testing interaction between Void system and assassination energy for first time.

The attack struck his chest violently, but Void energy activated automatically, absorbing force before conscious reaction could even form properly.

Instead of destruction, energy transformed internally, creating second Void Book page, forming unknown script reacting to emotional instability within him.

Assassin paused briefly, analyzing unexpected absorption, recognizing anomaly in expected kill outcome, recalculating Harris as evolving unpredictable threat rapidly.

Then it attacked again simultaneously from multiple spatial angles, using thread-based execution patterns designed to erase all possible survival routes.

Harris retreated instantly, pulling Second Void Book inside shirt, protecting it instinctively like critical survival asset during combat sequence.

He moved through shattered terrain, dodging invisible thread strikes cutting space silently, each attack erasing matter without sound or trace.

He attempted counterattacks using unstable Void bursts, but emotional instability caused inconsistent output, making his attacks partially unpredictable and unstable.

Assassin analyzed this instantly, recognizing emotional interference increasing unpredictability, making Harris more dangerous but also more vulnerable strategically over time.

It stopped direct engagement, shifting strategy, deciding to target people emotionally connected to Harris instead of continuing direct confrontation.

Harris immediately sensed shift, fear tightening inside him, understanding what secondary targeting meant for people he unconsciously wanted to protect.

The assassin vanished from battlefield, initiating secondary elimination sequence toward Harris’s allies without leaving any trace behind its movement path.

Harris felt it instantly, turning direction of presence shift, realizing target change had already begun beyond his immediate reaction control.

At Harlina’s location, atmosphere froze, birds stopped mid-air, and space itself became heavy under approaching assassin presence manifestation completely.

The assassin appeared behind her silently, forming from stitched void threads, humanoid silhouette constructed from collapsed dimensional fragments and absence.

Harlina's body froze instantly, not physically bound, but overwhelmed by presence pressure suppressing both movement and emotional response systems completely.

She could not move or speak, only feel overwhelming silence pressing against her consciousness like suffocating invisible execution field force.

Harris arrived instantly using Void Step, space fracturing violently, as emotional urgency replaced all tactical calculation inside his movement.

He stepped between Harlina and assassin, voice low but firm, commanding presence despite internal emotional fear and instability rising.

Barrier formed around Harlina, not just energy, but emotional intent converted into protective field stabilizing surrounding space completely instantly.

Harris attacked with full Void output, but strike carried emotional desperation, protecting Harlina rather than purely focusing on destruction.

Attack collided with assassin, but Eternal Symbol reacted violently, rejecting output and destabilizing Harris internal energy circulation system immediately.

Shockwave spread through his body, disrupting Void flow completely, causing partial system shutdown and loss of control over abilities.

Harris staggered backward, power deactivating step by step, not from injury, but from emotional instability exceeding system tolerance limits.

Harlina looked at him slightly, still frozen, but aware, and that single eye contact created deep emotional fracture inside him.

For a moment, Harris saw her not as objective, but as someone real depending on him without knowing danger.

That realization weakened him more than any attack ever could, breaking emotional restraint that kept him stable during combat.

The assassin prepared finishing strike, sensing vulnerability, calculating final elimination sequence execution based on Harris destabilized emotional and energy state.

But spatial tear opened suddenly, and Jekuna arrived, followed by Koji and Lunar, disrupting assassination completion sequence instantly together.

Their presence forced assassin recalculation, then it withdrew completely, choosing escape after collecting full emotional instability data for analysis.

No trace remained after it vanished, only silence filling battlefield again, heavier than before, carrying unresolved emotional pressure everywhere.

Harris collapsed afterward, not from injury, but emotional exhaustion combined with Void system instability and identity synchronization breakdown completely.

Inside mental successor space, voices warned about Second Book, Crimson Eclipse escalation, and emotional dependency exploitation being used against him.

But Harris barely listened, because his mind stayed on Harlina's safety, not cosmic war or system-level future destruction.

Then everything vanished, successors erased completely from his consciousness without warning or trace of their existence remaining anywhere.

Harris woke suddenly, breathing heavily, Harlina sleeping beside him peacefully, unaware of how close death had approached her again.

He looked at her silently, carrying emotional responsibility heavier than power itself, realizing survival meant nothing without protecting her existence.

He carefully adjusted her position, ensuring safety and stability, then searched for Second Book, but it was already gone.

Only faint residue near throne remained, confirming deliberate theft rather than accidental loss during chaos or battle sequence disturbance.

Harris stood still, realizing interference was intentional, targeting both his evolution and emotional attachments simultaneously with calculated precision strategy.

He whispered that someone had taken it, and this time fear and determination existed together inside his voice clearly.

TO BE CONTINUED

By Harris Ravi

VOID WALKER S3 — CHAPTER 3: “THE DAY HE SMILED”

Harris searched near the ruined throne area where Second Void Book disappeared, scanning broken space fragments with intense frustration.

Every shattered stone around him carried memory of the battle, yet no trace of the book remained anywhere visible nearby.

He slowed his breathing, forcing himself to replay every second of the fight, analyzing where the book could have fallen.

But memory gave no clarity, only fragments of violence, displacement, and collapsing space that had erased all physical certainty completely.

For the first time, Harris felt not defeated by enemy, but defeated by absence of something he could not locate.

That feeling grew heavier than pain, heavier than battle injuries, heavier than every assassination attempt he had survived so far.

Anger slowly formed inside him, not explosive, but silent and deep, because loss without explanation felt worse than destruction itself.

He clenched his fist tightly, standing alone near throne ruins, realizing something important had been taken without leaving any trace.

Void energy flickered slightly under his skin, reacting to emotional instability caused by unresolved disappearance of Second Void Book artifact.

He forced himself to calm down, knowing emotional instability would only weaken him further against Crimson Eclipse future incoming threats.

Still, frustration remained like burning pressure inside chest, growing every second he failed to find any lead or direction forward.

He finally turned away from ruins, deciding to return to Harlina’s house for temporary grounding before continuing deeper investigation path.

The walk back felt longer than usual, not because of distance, but because his mind refused to stop replaying failure.

Each step carried silent weight of unfinished mission, incomplete knowledge, and growing fear that book might be lost permanently.

Yet underneath frustration, something else existed quietly—responsibility toward people relying on him even without understanding cosmic war approaching reality.

That thought slightly stabilized him, because purpose always mattered more than confusion, even when answers were not available immediately.

He reached Harlina's house under dim sky, feeling atmosphere shift from battlefield tension into fragile temporary peace environment structure.

For a moment, silence felt less threatening, almost like world pretending normal existence still had meaning despite ongoing destruction cycles.

He entered quietly, expecting normal routine, but paused immediately when he saw Harlina sleeping peacefully in soft morning light.

Her expression was calm, untouched by war knowledge, making Harris feel something unfamiliar forming inside him without logical explanation.

He stood still, observing her quietly, and tension inside him slowly reduced, replaced by rare softness he never allowed before.

A small smile formed on his face, not forced, not strategic, but naturally emerging from emotional relief and attachment realization.

That moment felt dangerous in a different way, because emotional attachment was vulnerability he was always trained to suppress.

Yet he did not resist it, allowing himself brief humanity in middle of cosmic chaos and assassin threat existence timeline.

Harris quietly sat near her, watching sunrise light slowly spread across room, reflecting warmth he rarely experienced in reality.

He made coffee silently in kitchen, careful not to disturb her sleep, moving with unusual calmness and gentle precision behavior.

Holding cup, he returned and sat nearby again, thinking deeply about Second Void Book while observing peaceful environment around him.

Even in calm moment, his mind refused to stop searching, because responsibility never allowed him true rest or emotional silence.

Still, he allowed himself to exist in present, something rare for someone constantly living between survival and destruction timelines.

For first time, he was not only Void Walker, but also human sitting quietly beside someone he unconsciously protected always.

Harlina slowly woke up, noticing Harris sitting nearby watching her quietly, which immediately brought warmth and slight surprise to her.

She blinked softly, adjusting to morning light, then smiled instinctively seeing him present in such calm and unusual behavior state.

Harris noticed her reaction and silently handed her coffee, gesture simple but emotionally meaningful in way neither of them spoke.

Harlina accepted coffee, still confused by sudden peaceful atmosphere, sensing emotional shift in him compared to previous intense survival behavior.

Koji arrived shortly after, immediately noticing difference in Harris presence, recognizing calmness that felt unnatural yet strangely comforting simultaneously.

Harris also offered coffee to Koji, remaining quiet, still deeply focused internally on unresolved mystery of Second Void Book disappearance.

Koji exchanged confused glance with Harlina, both sensing emotional transformation, but neither interrupting, observing Harris carefully without breaking silence atmosphere.

Harlina actually felt happy seeing him like this, because it showed rare vulnerability hidden behind constant survival-driven personality structure.

However, Koji remained cautious, sensing calmness might not be stable state, but temporary emotional pause before another major escalation event.

After few moments, Koji finally asked why Harris behavior changed so suddenly, expecting logical or strategic explanation behind transformation shift.

Harris simply replied nothing, voice calm but distant, then requested Koji to prioritize finding Second Void Book without further delay.

Koji immediately understood seriousness beneath calm tone, nodding and promising to investigate faster with full available resources and connections.

After that, Harris walked outside slowly, smiling slightly for first time in long while, calling Harlina to join him.

He asked if they could go on short vacation, surprising her with unexpected emotional initiative instead of mission-based behavior pattern.

Harlina paused, then agreed softly, asking for few minutes to refresh before joining him outside under warm morning atmosphere.

Harris nodded and waited, telling her he would inform others so group could join and make moment more meaningful.

He called Jekuna, instructing him to gather others, planning shared break from constant survival tension and ongoing threat environment cycle.

For first time, everyone saw Harris acting like normal person, and confusion mixed with relief spread across group members.

Koji quietly realized something important during that moment and remembered it was actually Harris birthday, something everyone had forgotten earlier.

He informed Harlina, creating sudden emotional shock and guilt inside her for forgetting such important personal day for someone she cared.

Harlina immediately started organizing surprise celebration with Jekuna and others, determined to give Harris memory of genuine happiness moment.

They prepared everything secretly, hiding excitement, planning carefully to surprise him after vacation return without revealing intention prematurely to anyone.

Meanwhile, Harris continued training quietly even during vacation moments, unable to fully disconnect from internal pressure and Void instability awareness.

Despite external happiness, internal weight remained, because Second Void Book absence still felt like missing core piece of his destiny.

Still, he allowed himself to enjoy time, sitting beside Harlina, laughing softly for moments that felt unreal compared to past.

For that brief time, he lived like normal human instead of weapon, forgetting war pressure while still carrying deep responsibility.

They returned home after vacation, and Harlina with Jekuna began secretly preparing surprise party, hiding excitement behind normal behavior.

Harris noticed darkness inside house, but did not suspect anything, assuming everyone was simply tired after long emotional day together.

After refreshing himself, he walked into room quietly, preparing to drink juice, unaware of emotional storm waiting to erupt.

Suddenly lights turned on, and everyone shouted surprise, revealing cake, gifts, and celebration prepared carefully for his birthday moment.

Harris froze for a second, then slowly smiled, realizing they had done all this just to make him feel happy.

For a moment, war disappeared from his mind completely, replaced by warmth of people who chose to remember his existence.

He cut cake slowly, emotional silence breaking inside him, then fed first piece to Harlina, sharing quiet meaningful connection moment.

Harlina smiled warmly, while Koji, Jekuna, Roku, Reku, and others joined celebration, making entire room feel alive with happiness energy.

Harris shared cake with everyone, something he never did before, and laughter filled space like healing force against all darkness.

Still, he tried to live normally, sitting beside Harlina, sharing small peaceful moments that felt unreal compared to previous chaos.

He laughed softly for first time in long while, forgetting war briefly, even while subconscious mind continued monitoring danger patterns.

That day became rare emotional memory, where survival was not only goal, but life itself had temporary meaning beyond conflict.

For that night, Harris slept peacefully without Void disturbances, without assassin pressure, without internal system instability affecting consciousness stability state.

However, distant timeline remained unchanged, because only one year was left before Crimson Eclipse reached full activation across reality structure.

And far away, Koji finally located trace leading to Second Void Book, marking beginning of next unavoidable escalation phase.

TO BE CONTINUED

By Harris Ravi

VOID WALKER

SEASON 3

CHAPTER 4: THE SILENCE BEFORE THE CRIMSON STORM

Harris finally discovered the ancient book and immediately began studying forgotten Void techniques while preparing carefully for future battles.

The mysterious book contained countless techniques and combat methods yet revealed absolutely nothing significant regarding Crimson Eclipse.

Although disappointed by missing answers Harris focused completely upon mastering every technique recorded throughout the ancient pages.

Day after day he trained relentlessly within isolated Void dimensions where destruction echoed endlessly beyond ordinary comprehension.

Among every technique described one ability fascinated Harris greatly the powerful Absorbing Mechanism capable of consuming enemy attacks.

The technique seemed simple initially however mastering complete absorption demanded exceptional concentration endurance control adaptability and patience.

Thousands of attacks struck Harris repeatedly during training sessions forcing continuous adaptation against overwhelming pressure and exhaustion.

Each absorbed attack strengthened understanding gradually allowing improved efficiency without damaging his physical structure significantly anymore.

Months passed quickly while Harris perfected defensive absorption methods eventually managing several simultaneous attacks successfully during training.

Despite remarkable progress limitations remained because absorbing unlimited attacks simultaneously exceeded current capabilities even for Harris.

Instead of frustration Harris accepted imperfections understanding true mastery required gradual evolution rather than reckless ambition.

Six months remained before Crimson Eclipse arrived therefore every second became valuable beyond ordinary measurement for survival.

One evening Harris sensed several dangerous presences approaching rapidly carrying intentions filled entirely with murder and destruction.

Without hesitation Harris immediately recognized them as elite assassins connected directly to Crimson Eclipse operations worldwide.

Five assassins emerged simultaneously surrounding Harris confidently believing numerical superiority guaranteed success against Void Walker permanently.

Rather than attacking immediately Harris activated Domain Expansion and released unimaginable power throughout existence surrounding countless regions.

Infinite Destruction expanded across approximately one thousand light years swallowing stars planets systems and overwhelming nearby reality.

The assassins immediately understood their mistake because escape became impossible within such overwhelming dominion controlled completely.

Every movement every thought every action remained visible to Harris whose authority surpassed natural laws entirely.

Instead of eliminating enemies immediately Harris desired information therefore questioning them regarding Crimson Eclipse leadership and objectives.

The assassins refused cooperation confidently expecting death before revealing important secrets protected through unwavering loyalty.

While questioning continued one assassin secretly disappeared and suddenly appeared beside Harlina holding a deadly weapon.

Everyone froze instantly because the assassin threatened Harlina directly believing Harris would hesitate under emotional pressure.

Unfortunately for him Harris reacted faster than perception instantly erasing the assassin before anyone comprehended events.

His existence vanished completely leaving nothing except lingering shock among surviving assassins trapped within Infinite Destruction.

The remaining assassins finally understood touching Harris's friends guaranteed immediate annihilation regardless of circumstances thereafter.

Despite overwhelming superiority Harris intentionally restrained himself because gathering intelligence remained more important than victory.

Black attacked first launching devastating energy projectiles toward Harris attempting overwhelming force through continuous pressure.

Harris calmly absorbed several attacks simultaneously converting hostile energy directly into usable Void power effortlessly.

Seri followed immediately using dimensional blades designed specifically for assassination however every strike failed completely.

Kuda unleashed cursed weapons carrying ancient destructive properties yet Harris neutralized them without noticeable difficulty.

Tera combined attacks strategically alongside companions hoping coordinated pressure might expose weaknesses somewhere eventually.

Instead Harris treated the battle like training continuously testing absorption techniques while studying enemy patterns.

Hours passed gradually exhausting assassins whose strongest attacks achieved nothing meaningful against Harris throughout combat.

Eventually despair replaced confidence because defeating Void Walker seemed impossible under present circumstances entirely.

Recognizing inevitable defeat Black finally agreed revealing information regarding hidden truths behind Crimson Eclipse activities.

According to Black Crimson Eclipse served something far greater than ordinary organizations existing beyond dimensions.

Seri continued explaining their loyalty originated from fear rather than devotion because their master transcended imagination.

Kuda revealed legends describing a terrifying entity known universally among members as the Crimson Monster.

The Crimson Monster supposedly slept beyond reality awaiting specific conditions before awakening and consuming civilizations.

Tera explained another crucial secret involving the legendary Eclipse Sword connected directly to awakening rituals.

Every revelation increased tension significantly because pieces finally connected into a horrifying future picture.

Harris listened carefully analyzing every statement while mentally preparing strategies against threats approaching steadily.

Finally Harris demanded the true identity behind Crimson Eclipse leadership refusing acceptance without complete answers.

Black opened his mouth slowly preparing disclosure while visible fear dominated expressions across every assassin.

Before revealing the name reality suddenly trembled violently causing immediate concern throughout Infinite Destruction unexpectedly.

An unknown force emerged from unimaginable distances penetrating Harris's Domain despite extraordinary defensive authority.

The assassins instantly recognized the presence and panic overwhelmed them completely unlike previous encounters.

Black attempted warning Harris urgently yet his body suddenly began dissolving before finishing words.

Seri screamed helplessly while disappearing gradually consumed by mysterious power beyond understanding entirely.

Kuda suffered identical fate vanishing completely despite resistance efforts proving absolute futility against attackers.

Tera remained longest desperately attempting explanation however he too disappeared before delivering critical information.

Within moments every surviving assassin vanished completely absorbed by an unknown force observing remotely.

Everyone present stood shocked speechless and confused witnessing impossible events unfold directly before them.

Harris alone remained relatively calm because he anticipated protective measures surrounding important Crimson Eclipse secrets.

Rather than fear Harris interpreted events as confirmation regarding enemy strength and future dangers.

The unknown force proved existence of adversaries capable challenging even Infinite Destruction under specific conditions.

After careful consideration Harris deactivated his Domain allowing reality return gradually toward normal conditions.

Although externally calm Harris understood war preparations required immediate acceleration because remaining time diminished rapidly.

Concerned for Harlina's safety Harris offered additional powers specifically designed protecting her during emergencies.

He requested she avoid participation entirely and remain distant from future battles whenever possible.

Harlina rejected both suggestions immediately refusing abandonment despite understanding dangers approaching relentlessly soon.

She insisted remaining beside Harris regardless of consequences because protecting loved ones mattered greatly.

Harris expected refusal therefore accepted her decision while secretly admiring unwavering determination and courage.

Recognizing upcoming challenges Harris began training every friend personally ensuring improved survival opportunities later.

Barrier creation became primary focus because defensive measures could reduce casualties significantly during war.

Each friend learned advanced techniques gradually developing confidence through disciplined practice and perseverance together.

Harlina received special instruction because Harris wanted her capable surviving against extraordinary opponents independently.

Training sessions continued daily strengthening everyone physically mentally emotionally and spiritually before inevitable conflict.

Throughout these months Harlina repeatedly considered confessing feelings hidden deeply within her heart.

Countless opportunities appeared naturally yet courage abandoned her whenever conversations became personally meaningful.

She constantly postponed confession believing successful survival after war would create better circumstances.

Unknown to Harlina those feelings influenced many decisions motivating relentless improvement throughout training periods.

Meanwhile Koji observed unusual changes affecting Harris's body Divine Outfit and connection with Void Queen.

Concerned by observations Koji approached Harris directly seeking explanations regarding suspicious developments recently noticed.

Harris dismissed concerns casually considering them insignificant compared against larger threats facing everyone.

However Koji remained unconvinced because subtle abnormalities suggested deeper issues hidden beneath appearances.

While preparing for war Harris occasionally worried about protecting friends without allowing injuries whatsoever.

Victory alone seemed insufficient because preserving every companion mattered equally within his personal values.

Despite internal worries Harris never revealed burdens choosing instead maintain optimism around friends consistently.

His confident smile reassured everyone creating stability during uncertain months preceding catastrophic events.

Determined protecting civilians Harris conceived an ambitious solution beyond conventional evacuation methods entirely.

Using extraordinary Void abilities Harris created a temporary planet specifically designed sheltering vulnerable populations safely.

Massive oceans mountains forests and cities formed gradually beneath careful guidance from Void energy.

Around this sanctuary Harris established an unbreakable barrier accessible exclusively through his personal authority.

The completed refuge guaranteed humanity's survival even if Earth became battlefield during Crimson Eclipse.

For the first time genuine relief appeared because contingency plans finally existed against worst possibilities.

As months progressed peace unexpectedly returned allowing precious moments normally impossible during constant conflict.

One evening Harris shared dinner with friends creating memories free from violence fear and responsibility.

Laughter echoed warmly throughout gathering reminding everyone why protecting their world remained worthwhile forever.

Although happy Harlina secretly desired something more personal than group celebrations and companionship.

Gathering courage carefully she invited Harris to share dinner alone sometime during following days.

Harris agreed casually suggesting tomorrow without realizing importance attached to invitation by Harlina.

Though slightly disappointed initially Harlina accepted response while eagerly preparing for their meeting.

The next day she dedicated extraordinary effort toward creating the most delicious meal possible.

To her surprise Harris volunteered assistance helping prepare ingredients while enjoying peaceful conversation together.

Cooking side by side created cherished memories neither would easily forget regardless of future hardships.

After completing preparations they enjoyed dinner alone beneath peaceful skies illuminated gently by distant stars.

Neither discussed war extensively choosing instead appreciate tranquility rarely available throughout recent years.

For Harlina the evening represented fulfillment of a dream treasured secretly for countless months.

For Harris the evening offered brief escape from responsibilities burdens and approaching catastrophe looming ahead.

When night deepened both experienced unusual peace absent from their lives for considerable time.

The remaining months passed creating unforgettable memories strengthening bonds before destiny demanded ultimate sacrifices.

Harris continued preparing relentlessly while awaiting inevitable confrontation against Crimson Eclipse and hidden enemies.

Unknown dangers gathered beyond reality watching silently while final stages of preparation unfolded steadily.

Yet Harris smiled confidently because fear no longer controlled his heart or determination anymore.

The war approached relentlessly but Void Walker stood ready protecting friends humanity and everything precious forever.

Harlina looked toward the peaceful night sky while countless thoughts remained hidden deeply within her heart forever tonight.

She wanted confessing everything honestly yet fear prevented words from leaving her lips during this precious moment.

Harris remained completely unaware while enjoying rare peace before the approaching war threatening everyone he loved deeply.

The stars shined brightly above them silently witnessing memories destined becoming treasures during future darkness and suffering.

After finishing dinner together they walked peacefully beneath moonlight creating unforgettable memories within their hearts forever afterward.

Neither understood how valuable these simple moments would become once Crimson Eclipse finally descended upon their world.

Later that night they returned home carrying happiness rarely experienced throughout their difficult journeys together before now.

Harlina smiled gently remembering every moment shared beside Harris during the evening she cherished most dearly.

For the first time in months her heart felt completely peaceful despite terrifying uncertainties approaching relentlessly ahead.

Meanwhile Harris continued planning countless strategies ensuring civilian protection friend survival and eventual victory against impossible odds.

Yet hidden concerns regarding his body Divine Outfit and Void Queen remained unanswered beneath calm appearances still.

Koji watched silently realizing Harris ignored dangerous changes gradually affecting him beyond ordinary understanding and perception.

The remaining months passed peacefully creating laughter friendships memories and bonds stronger than ever before throughout existence.

Harris trained everyone relentlessly while simultaneously preparing emergency shelters barriers and contingency plans for humanity's survival.

The temporary sanctuary planet continued developing perfectly becoming humanity's final refuge against incoming catastrophic destruction events.

Harlina eventually accepted fighting beside Harris directly promising never abandoning him regardless of future dangers awaiting.

Although unable confessing love she secretly decided revealing everything immediately after surviving the coming war together.

For now happiness remained precious because tomorrow promised uncertainty challenges sacrifices battles and unimaginable revelations beyond comprehension.

Far beyond reality unseen eyes observed patiently waiting for Crimson Eclipse and the awakening approaching soon.

The final calm before history's greatest war had finally begun beneath silent stars watching destiny unfold carefully.

TO BE CONTINUED...

BY HARRIS RAVI

VOID WALKER SEASON 3 CHAPTER 5 — THE FINAL GOODBYE

Only two days remained before the Crimson Eclipse arrived and changed the universe forever beyond recognition completely forever.

Harris accelerated civilian evacuation efforts, moving countless innocent people toward the Sanctuary safe zone immediately everywhere.

Many civilians obeyed willingly, understanding the danger approaching steadily from beyond the stars toward humanity soon.

Others refused evacuation completely, unwilling abandoning homes, memories, and lives built through generations together peacefully.

Harris showed no hesitation.

For the first time, Harris forced civilians toward safety despite their protests and resistance completely without compromise.

Harlina stood beside Harris throughout everything, helping evacuate families while comforting frightened citizens during transitions.

Day after day they worked tirelessly, ensuring every possible life reached sanctuary protection before disaster arrived.

Eventually the evacuation process finished successfully and nearly everyone remained protected behind powerful defensive systems.

Yet Harris still carried another plan.

A secret plan.

A dangerous plan.

A plan nobody would ever accept willingly because it involved sacrificing everything he valued deeply.

Harris believed the Crimson Eclipse targeted him above everyone else living throughout existence currently and forever.

If everyone remained beside him during battle, countless lives would disappear because of his presence.

Therefore Harris made his decision.

He would protect everyone.

Alone.

With only two days remaining, Harris decided spending every possible moment alongside everyone he loved dearly.

He laughed with Koji during ridiculous competitions and listened patiently to Izuku's endless heroic speeches daily.

Children dragged Harris into games repeatedly, refusing excuses and forcing him enjoy himself for once.

Several children gifted handmade drawings depicting Void Walker protecting humanity from darkness and destruction everywhere.

Harris carefully stored every drawing received, treating each simple gift like a priceless treasure forever.

He walked through sanctuary streets greeting citizens personally while ensuring everyone felt comfortable and secure.

Families invited Harris into homes for meals, wanting memories together before uncertain times arrived soon.

Harris accepted every invitation happily, appreciating kindness he rarely allowed himself experiencing throughout life previously.

At sunset he watched children running freely through sanctuary streets while laughter echoed everywhere peacefully nearby.

A little girl hugged Harris tightly and thanked him for saving her family from danger before.

The simple gratitude nearly broke Harris emotionally because she trusted him completely without understanding reality yet.

That evening everyone gathered together beneath countless stars while celebrating survival, friendship, and hope joyfully.

Music echoed beautifully throughout the sanctuary.

Citizens danced.

Children laughed.

Friends shared stories.

For a moment everyone forgot the approaching apocalypse completely and embraced happiness together without fear.

Harris watched silently.

Every smile.

Every laugh.

Every voice.

Every memory.

He committed everything into his heart forever because he secretly considered it a final farewell.

Later that night Harlina found Harris sitting alone beneath moonlight while observing the endless sky.

Without speaking, she sat beside him gently and rested her head upon his shoulder quietly.

Neither moved away.

Neither spoke immediately.

Both simply enjoyed the peaceful silence together beneath beautiful stars shining endlessly above them tonight.

For Harris, that moment became more precious than countless victories achieved throughout his entire life.

For Harlina, that moment felt like happiness she wished would never disappear from existence forever.

Eventually Harlina broke the silence.

"When everything ends, don't disappear from us."

Harris remained silent.

His heart felt heavy.

Because he already knew what he intended doing soon.

"I'll try."

"That's not a promise."

Tears formed within Harlina's eyes instantly.

"No hero decides everyone's future alone."

For several moments neither spoke anything further while moonlight illuminated both figures gently tonight peacefully.

Above them, the moon appeared slightly crimson.

The Crimson Eclipse was approaching.

The final night arrived.

While everyone slept peacefully, Harris activated his secret plan quietly beneath the moonlit sky alone.

Powerful void energy surrounded the sanctuary and awakened an enormous divine barrier immediately everywhere nearby.

One by one, everyone sleeping peacefully became enveloped within gentle energy created by Harris carefully.

He transported every friend.

Every civilian.

Every child.

Every ally.

Deep inside the sanctuary barrier safely beyond the battlefield that would soon emerge outside.

Then Harris sealed the barrier completely.

The sound echoed throughout the sanctuary.

Moments later everyone awakened suddenly and realized something terrible had happened already during sleep.

They were trapped.

Safely trapped.

Inside the barrier.

Panic spread instantly.

Koji rushed toward the barrier.

Izuku followed immediately.

Citizens gathered everywhere desperately searching for answers regarding their sudden imprisonment inside sanctuary.

Then they saw him.

Harris.

Sitting alone beneath the moon outside the barrier calmly while waiting silently for destiny.

HARRIS!

Everyone shouted simultaneously.

Koji slammed against the barrier repeatedly.

Izuku attacked the barrier continuously.

Nothing worked.

The barrier remained completely unbreakable.

Harlina reached the barrier and stared toward Harris with fear and disbelief overwhelming her completely.

"Harris… what have you done?"

Harris stood slowly.

"I protected everyone."

"No."

Harlina shook her head desperately.

"No, Harris."

"We fight together."

"Not this time."

Everyone became furious immediately.

Koji screamed.

Izuku argued.

Citizens demanded answers.

Children cried.

Yet Harris remained calm.

Because his decision was final.

"There are two hours remaining."

"The Crimson Eclipse wants me."

"If everyone stays behind this barrier, you'll survive."

"And what about you?" Harlina shouted desperately.

For several moments Harris said nothing.

His silence became the answer everyone feared hearing most throughout their lives completely.

Tears streamed down Harlina's face instantly.

She struck the barrier repeatedly.

"Open it!"

"Harris!"

"OPEN IT!"

But Harris simply smiled sadly.

A smile filled with love.

A smile filled with gratitude.

A smile that looked painfully like goodbye.

Then the moon changed.

Crimson.

Darker.

Darker.

Darker.

Everyone noticed immediately.

The Crimson Eclipse had arrived.

The sky trembled violently.

Reality distorted.

A massive divine portal suddenly opened above the distant city beyond human understanding completely.

Then they appeared.

Monsters beyond imagination.

Creatures capable of destroying worlds.

An endless army emerging from darkness itself toward humanity's final battlefield ahead relentlessly.

Inside the barrier everyone watched helplessly.

Outside the barrier Harris stood completely alone beneath the crimson moon facing the apocalypse itself.

The Void Walker slowly rose.

And took his first step toward the approaching monsters.

TO BE CONTINUED IN SEASON 4

BY HARRIS RAVI ✨